The leaves fall, signaling the end of summer months.
The last unhurried days give way to orderliness, and once again
Clackamas opens its doors to returning students.

They come in many ways---
in the open air, aboard crowded and congenial buses,
in private chariots.
They come, laden with tools of learning.

MILWAUKE

They arrive.
Once again the building is filled with life.

Once again students hurry, lockers bang,
footsteps sound, bells ring, voices speak, desks are cluttered with books as various departments resume their duties.

LEWIS - CLARK COLLEGE
SUMMER SESSION
1968
BEGIN COLLEGE
THIS SUMMER

The process goes on.
Information is researched,
read, heard, retained.
Students learn to work – together and apart.

They learn of life,
of what their world is made
and how to build for themselves their future.

A break in the day. Time out for conversation,
lunch,
relaxing, club projects,
last-minute studying.
Confusion, laughter, time for problems to be solved
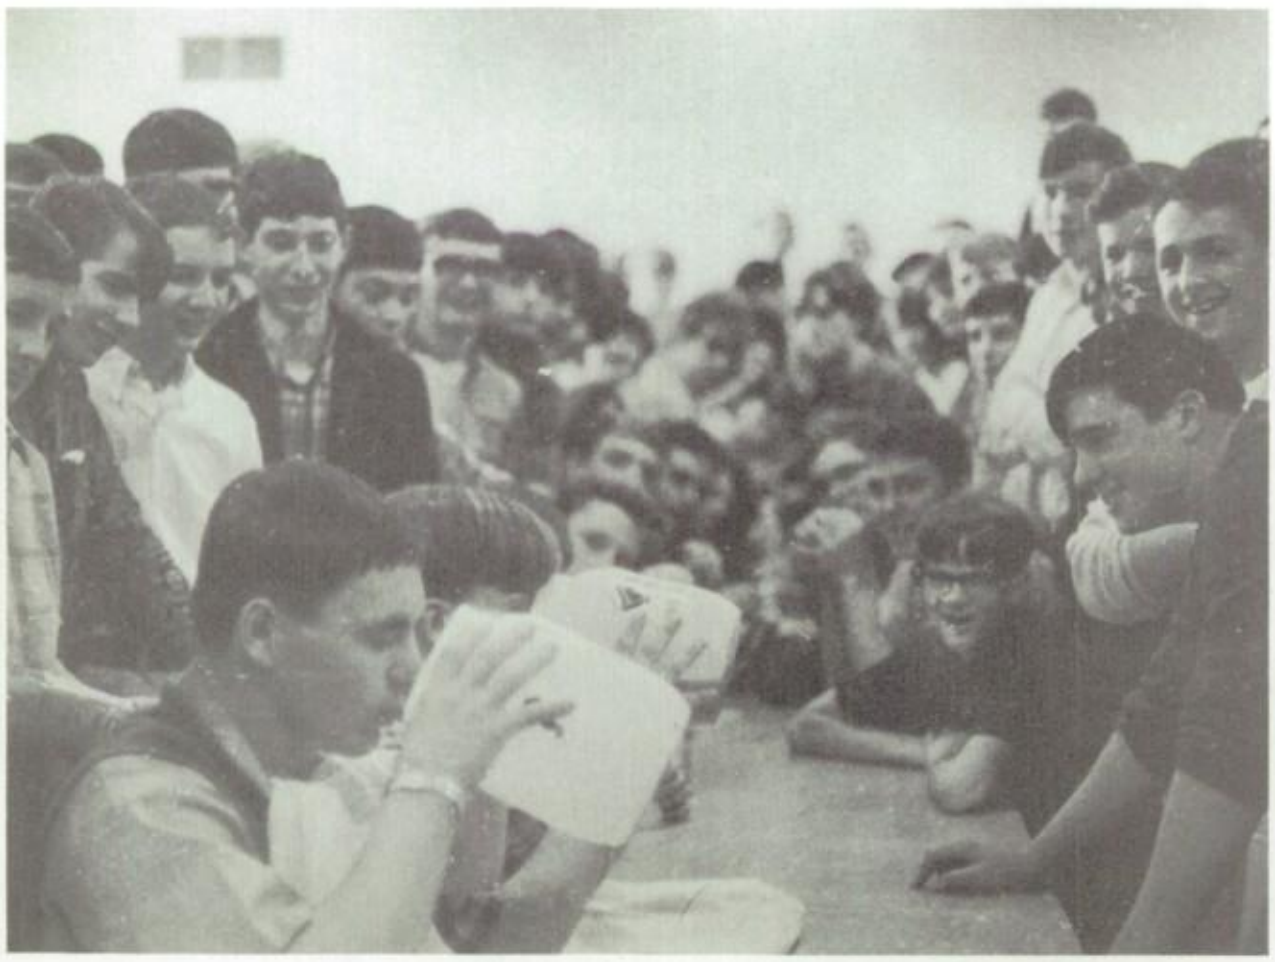
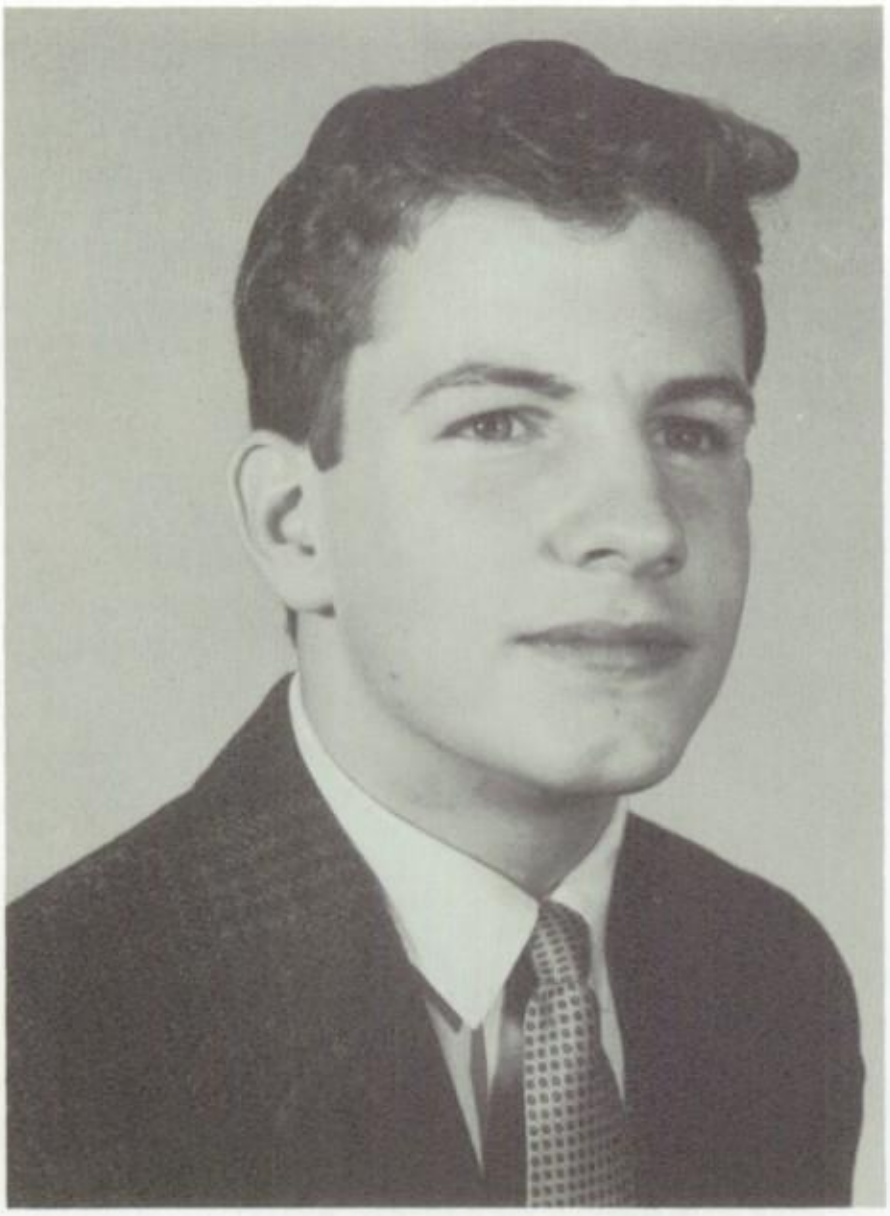
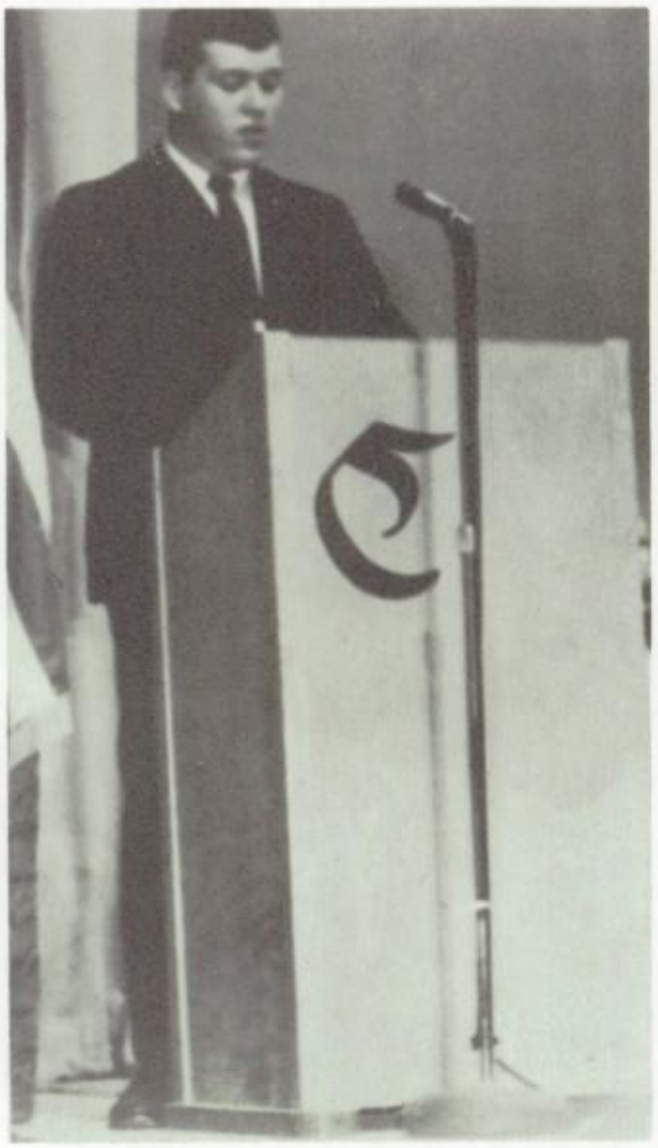
by those who guide and counsel.
So students mix, move, socialize
until the next bell.





Tom Holling, president



Tim Barry, first vice president

From the student body come officers.
Elected, they put their abilities to work.
Chosen to lead and
to organize the student body into an effective unit,
They do their jobs well — coordinating and representing the school,
Informing and moving disconnected parts into unified action.

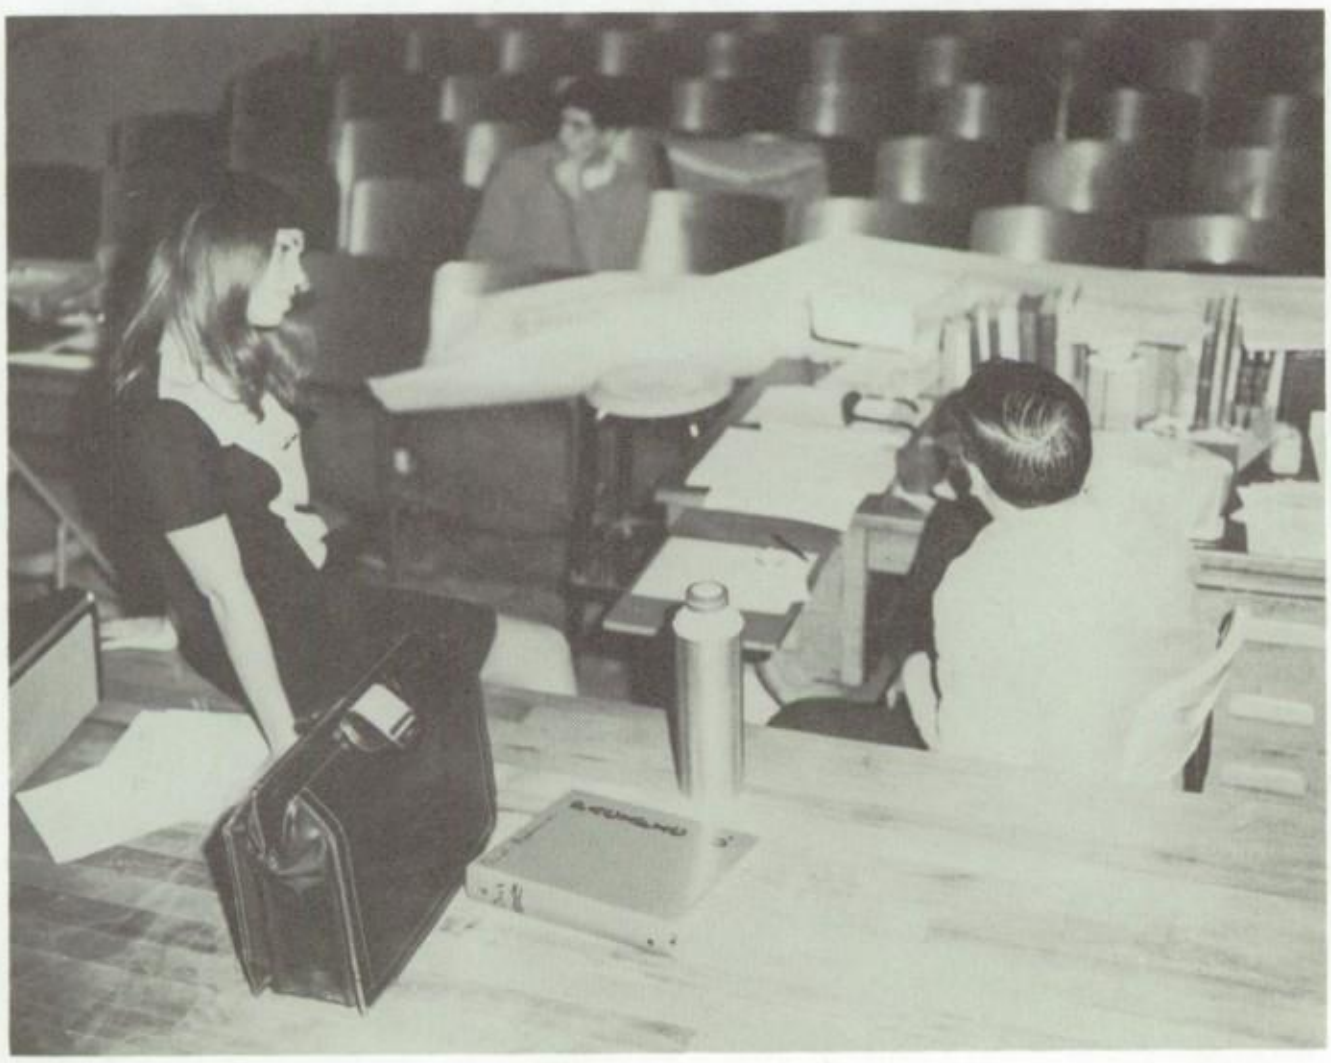
Lyndy Osborne, second vice president

Carolyn Popp, secretary

Ben Wnuczek, Mr. Cavalier

Charlie Rose, treasurer

After formal studies,
activities come to the foreground.
Time is devoted to special interests,
constant practice,
self-improvement.
Talent is demonstrated,
skills are utilized,
services are given.



The lights come on on.
Special events–opportunities to display knowledge and skills.
Performances are witnessed,
recognition is received.
In moments of high elation,
victories are won.

Always, for those in need,
there is extra help and assistance.
Aided by both teachers and machines,
students are guided along the sometimes rocky path of learning.

A short bus ride, and students are transported into the practical world of today's trades.
They are surrounded by new sights, sounds, and equipment as today's apprentices prepare to build tomorrow's world.

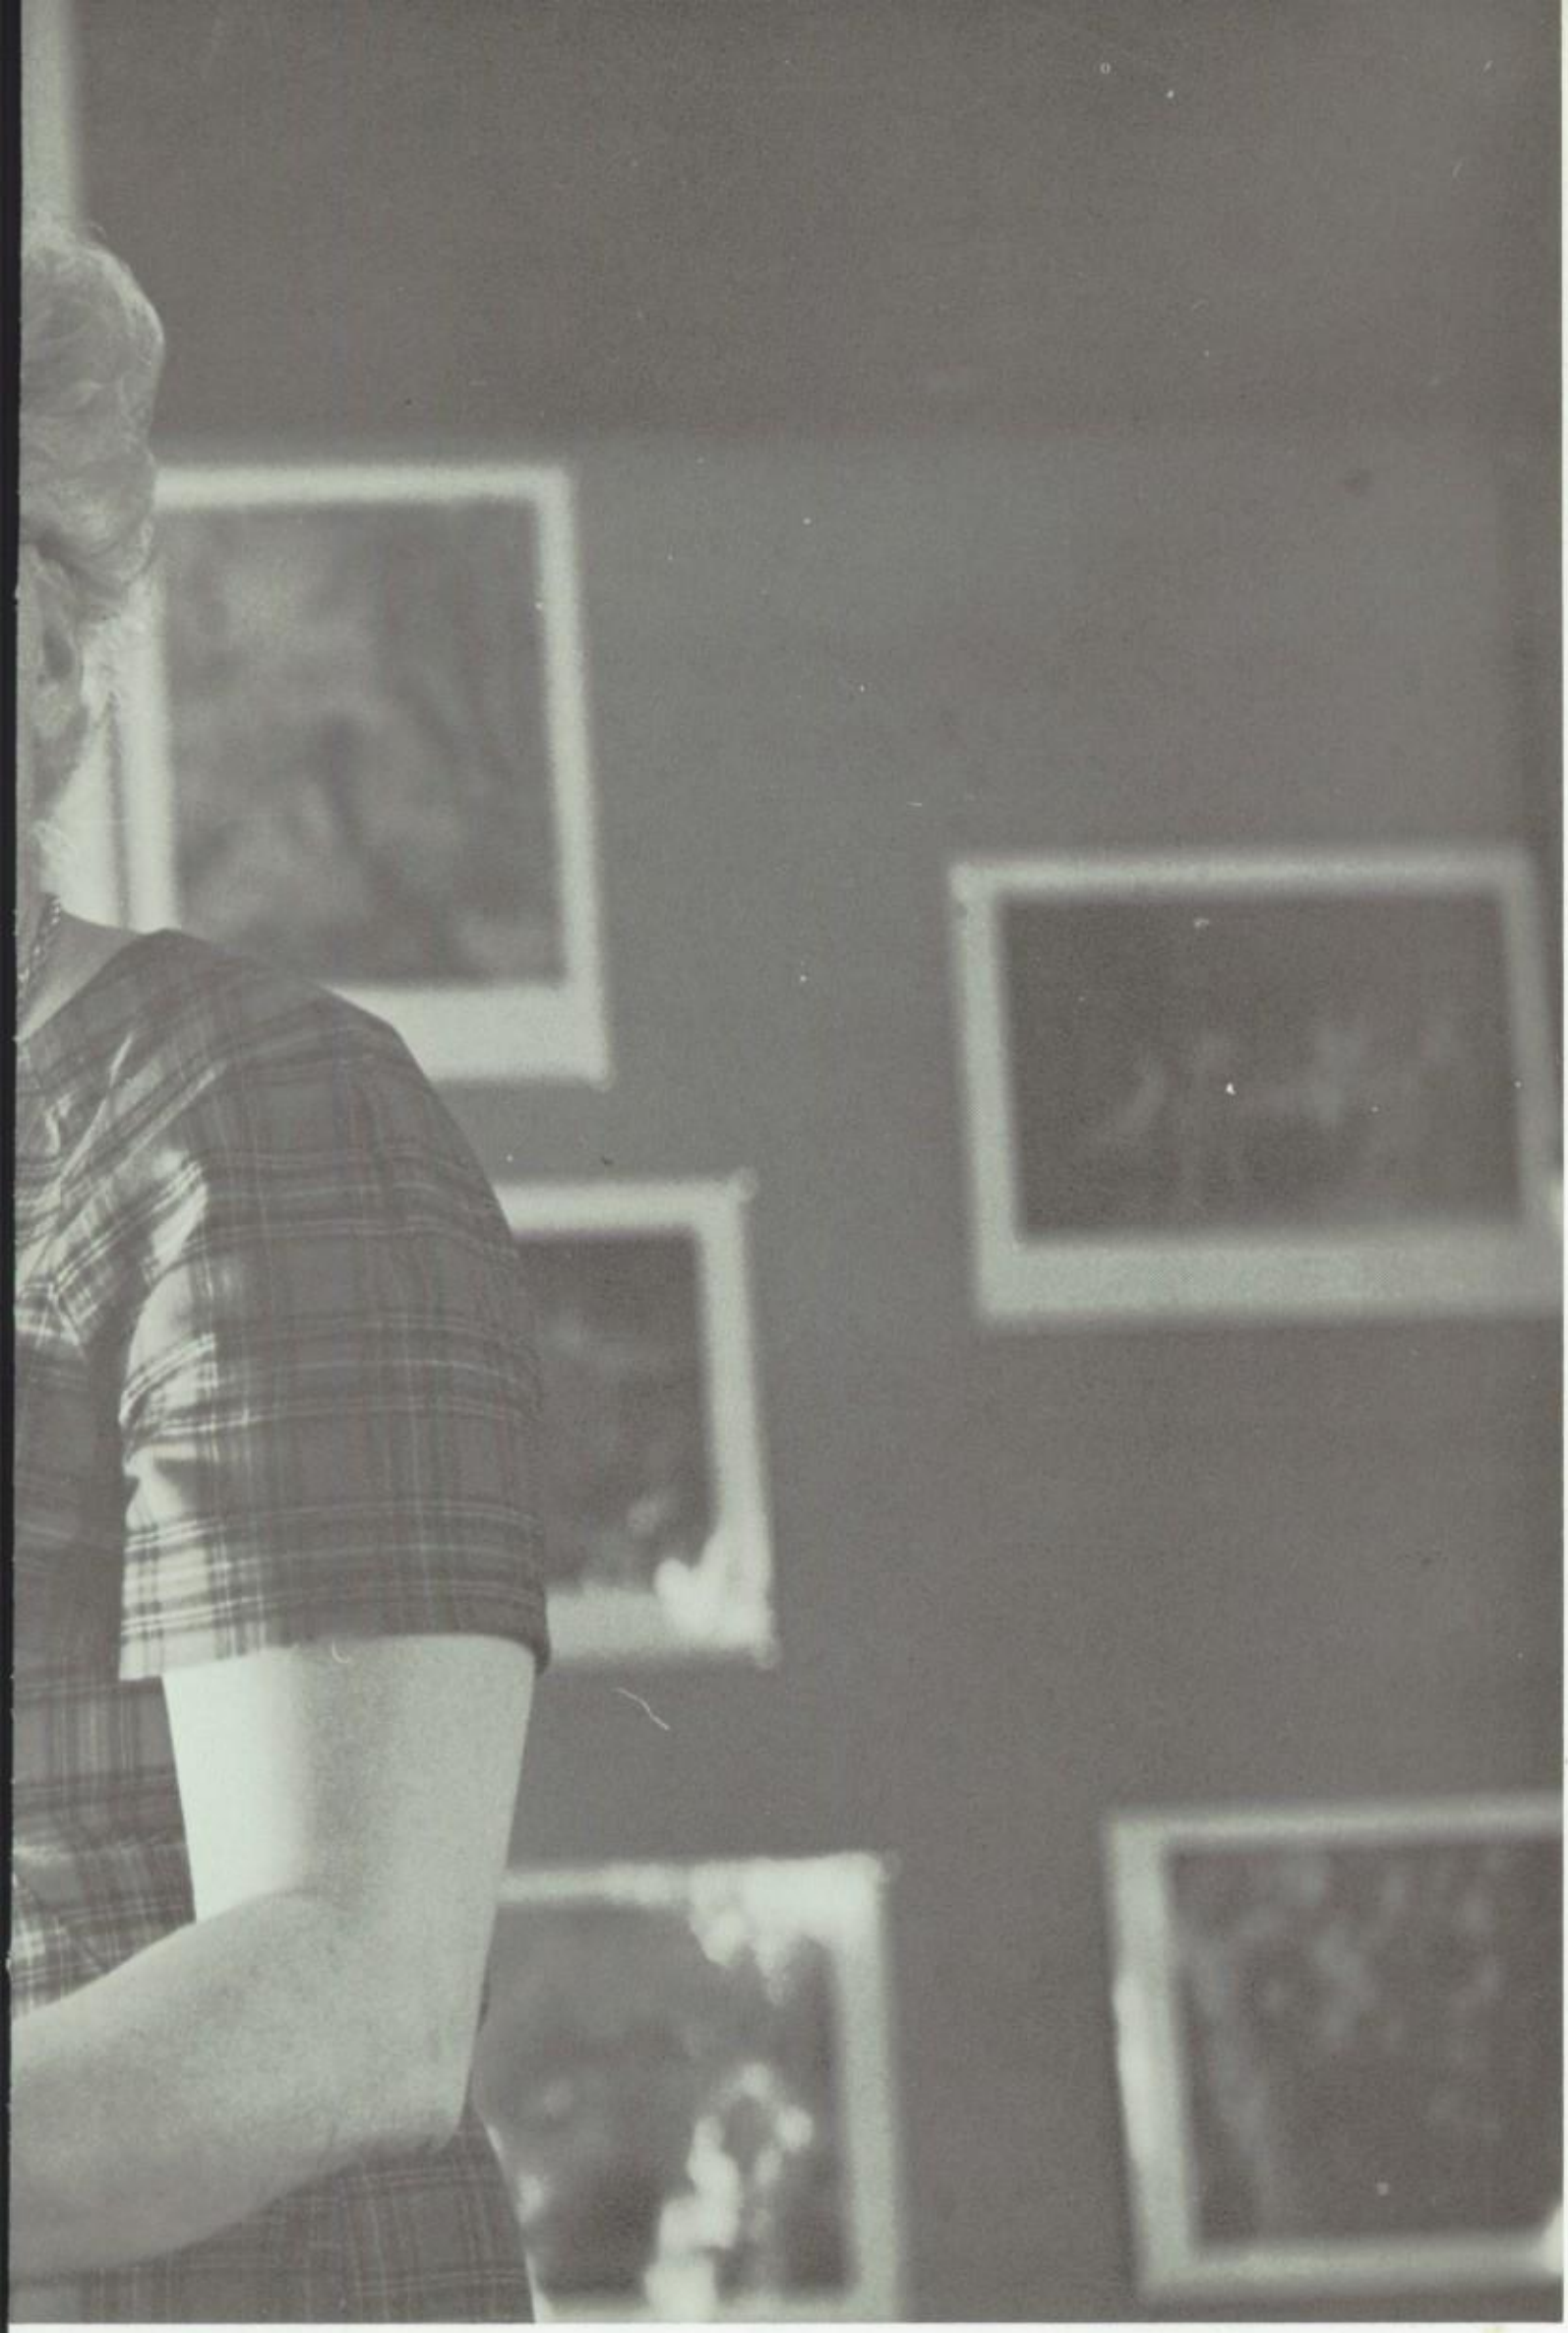
As a new year began in 1967, so did a new phase of educational opportunities in our school district. Students who showed an interest in drafting and design, graphic reproductions, building construction, metal fabrication, electronics, industrial mechanics, or child services were able to persue these fields at the newly constructed Skill Center.

The $456,000 facility provides students with an opportunity to obtain skills which will be helpful when seeking employment.

Future areas of training will include distributive education, health occupation, office machines, and data processing.

In his first year as director of the Skill Center, Mr. Robert Crane supervised the activities of 270 students.



Academics

Mr. Clifton Millen, principal

Principal

Clackamas High School was indeed fortunate to welcome a new face in its administrative office last fall--Mr. Clifton Millen, principal.

Coming to us from within our own district, Mr. Millen previously held the position of assistant principal at Milwaukie High School.

Dedicated to the task of attaining harmony between students and faculty, Mr. Millen's enthusiasm has brought such promises as, "I will clap, sing, holler, and even shake a pom pom in the cause of school spirit."

In the short course of one year, his now familiar greeting, "Is anybody happy?" has been welcomed by students and faculty alike.

Deans

Mrs. Ethel Folden, dean of girls

Mr. Charles Hogue, dean of boys

School Board

Seated: Mrs. Carolyn Perry, Mr. Jess Lamb, Mr. Marvin Law; Standing: Mr. Hans Juhr, Mr. Robert Strasser, Mr. Owen Sabin, and Harold Taylor.

Assistant Principal

As assistant principal, Mr. Newton serves our school well. Besides being a disciplinarian, one of his most tiring tasks in student affairs, he is a counsellor and friend to all who seek his help and guidance.

Home Economics Department

Specialization has taken its hold in the home economics field at Clackamas. At one time only cooking and sewing were offered. Now girls can learn about such important subjects as dress design, sportswear, family meals, family clothing, home furnishings, family living and child development, and specialities in food.

Social Studies

Using a variety of teaching techniques, the Social Studies Department encompasses a variety of subject matter. As freshmen, students learn about the geographic characteristics of our world by making maps, charts, and individual oral reports.

In the sophomore year students gain an insight of man's political and social developments in world history. The area of history is narrowed to the United States in the junior year. Films, television programs, and recordings are used to help dramatize the growth of our country from its independence to the current presidential campaigns.

Current issues of great concern make up the modern problems class curriculum. Visiting political aspirants explain the issues of the time. The United States' role in world affairs is examined by students in international relations classes. And this year several Clackamas students participated in the mock Republican Convention held in May.

Math Department

Among several new programs launched this year was the establishment of a chapter to the national mathematics club, Mu Alpha Theta. Approximately twenty-five members are expected to belong by the year's end.

Also enacted this year was the "help session" program. Meeting twice a week after school, students seeking help in mathematics receive guidance from fellow students.

Steps were taken to establish a math course for the non-college bound student. Primary emphasis is to be placed on vocational math.

Science Department

Beginning with a general course in applied science at the freshman level, the science department's line of study turns to more specific subjects -- biology, chemistry, and physics. The instructors try to build within the students a basic understanding of the principles underlying science.

Fine Arts Department

Art, drama, vocal and instrumental music, and speech make up the Clackamas Fine Arts Department. Students involved with its many activities represent Clackamas in numerous community functions.

Each of the six teachers within the department is recognized throughout Oregon as an expert in his field; each has helped to make this department a source of great pride for Clackamas High School.

Vocational Agriculture Department

Learning by doing best describes the activities of boys enrolled in vocational agriculture. Familiarity with plants, animals, and machinery is gained by working at the land lab and in the shop.

Each boy must complete several projects during the year. Receiving advice from their instructors, these students gain knowledge in fields which may become occupations or perhaps profitable hobbies.

Industrial Arts Department

Mechanical drawing, wood shop, and metal shop make up the Industrial Arts Department. Conversion of an idea into a tangible product is a rewarding experience for those enrolled. Either as a lifetime occupation or a challenging hobby, the skills learned in these classes are practical and helpful.

Foreign Language Department

Clackamas High School offers its students four foreign languages: German, Spanish, French, and Latin. Each class incorporates a variety of teaching methods. Foreign films, magazines, and textbooks help supplement materials used in the basic curriculum.

The department now sponsors a foreign exchange program, which this year enabled three Clackamas students to spend part of their summer in Mexico. During this year two Mexican students studied and observed at Clackamas for several weeks.

Activities of the Physical Education Department provide students with an opportunity to develop their physical stamina. Both lively games and vigorous exercises are employed to aid each student's well being.

Each season brings its own series of new activities--football, basketball, tumbling, soccer, volleyball, tennis, weight-lifting, and many others.

It is the hope of each P. E. instructor that every student develops an interest in a physical education activity which he can enjoy through his lifetime.

Librarian

Mr. James Baker has served Clackamas well for the past five years as a dedicated and energetic librarian. Over 15,000 books, magazines, and pamphlets are kept available for immediate use by both students and faculty.

In addition to helping students find research or study materials, Mr. Baker also has charge of all audio-visual aid equipment. Not pictured is his secretary Mrs. Delores Emerick.

Piergeorgio Acquaviva, more commonly known around the Clackamas campus as Pete, is our American Field exchange student from Italy. A well- rounded person, Pete spends his time giving speeches, working on the mock Republican Convention, organizing a soccer game with surrounding A. F. S. students, and participating in National Honor Society activities. Pete also joined Mu Alpha Theta (a math club) and the speech squad. Among all these activities, Pete has found time to meet new friends and learn about the American way of life.

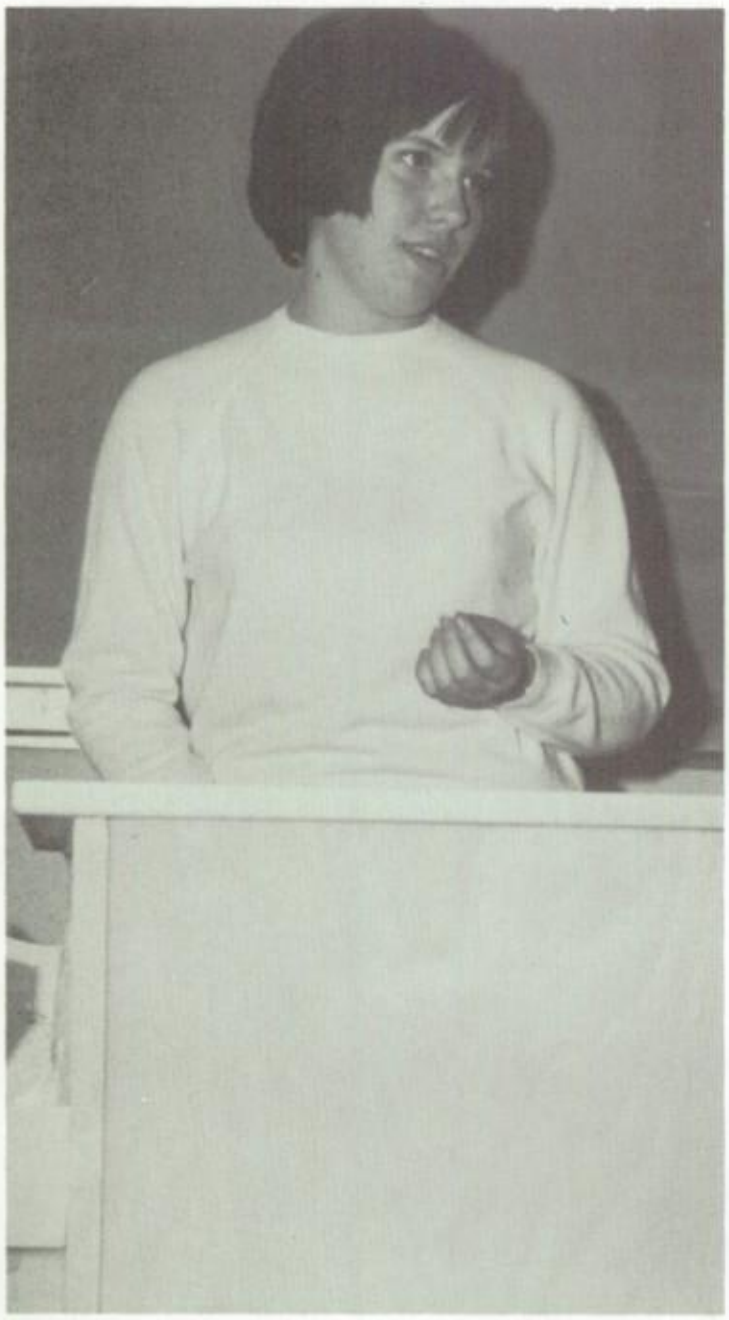
Speech Squad Nets Results



Representing Clackamas in oratory and interpretation was sophomore Sue Griffith.

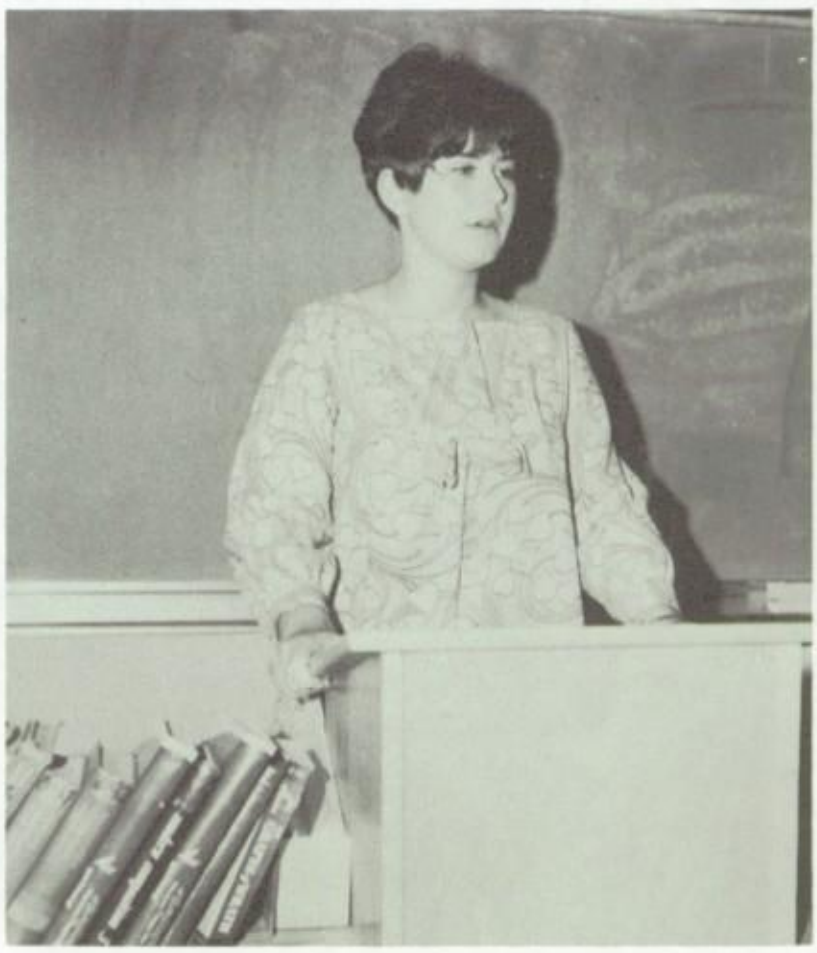
Tom Bentley displayed his impromptu speaking ability by taking first place at the Lewis and Clark meet. Also qualifying him for state competition was a second place at the district tournament.

A first place at the Pacific Tournament and a second at district in interpretive reading gave Renee Fallgren a chance at state.

Ron Johnson represented the squad well this year by taking a first at district in after-dinner speaking.

Denise Vogt took double honors acquiring a fourth at district in poetry and a second at Linfield in interpretive reading.

Reading poetry was Margo Waldron's specialty. Her second place at district allowed her a chance at the state tournament.



A first place in oratory was earned by Linda Wiles during the Linfield competition.

by Lloyd Shipman

A photograph is a memory:
A brief instant--rather than fading unnoticed--converts to a permanent fixture in the life of the beholder.
Only a picture preserves an instant
as it really was.
Words try, but their ambiguity clogs and distorts. They stumble and confuse.
Fortunate is he who has a precious moment caught--indelibly-- by the camera's lense.

Class of '68

We are all embarking on a grand adventure. For some it will be successful-- with great rewards and satisfaction. For others it will not be so successful-- maybe even painful. But that is life; that is the way it must be.

During our high school years we all search for that certain something we know is waiting around the next bend. Some of us find it during these mixed-up years and are content. Most of us, though, are still looking-- hoping to find our own peace of mind in our own way. Whatever becomes of us, in any case, depends on us alone.

As we live we continue to learn, and we will all be rewarded according to our efforts. Our high school years will remain in our minds as a time of direction finding. They will be recalled as a comic and joyous period where adulthood still seemed far off in the distance. They will also be remembered with sadness, by most of us, as the last chance to be children.

Our hope, though, is that we have been prepared adequately for our journey into life. And only by looking back from the distant future will we ever know.

Student Activities

Girls League In Action

Leslie MacPherson, Charlie Rose, and Kathy Schwab lead the rest of the audience in a familiar song.

Students obviously enjoy the good food and fine friendship present at the bi-monthly pot luck dinners.

Pat Lowrie, girl of the month chairman, pins a corsage on Jane York, who was selected January Girl of the Month.

Wig styles and wig care were demonstrated by local stylists at one of the meetings this year.

Father Daughter Banquet

My Heart Belongs to Daddy

Guests were entertained by Debra Hertel's beutiful rendition of "Climb Every Mountain".

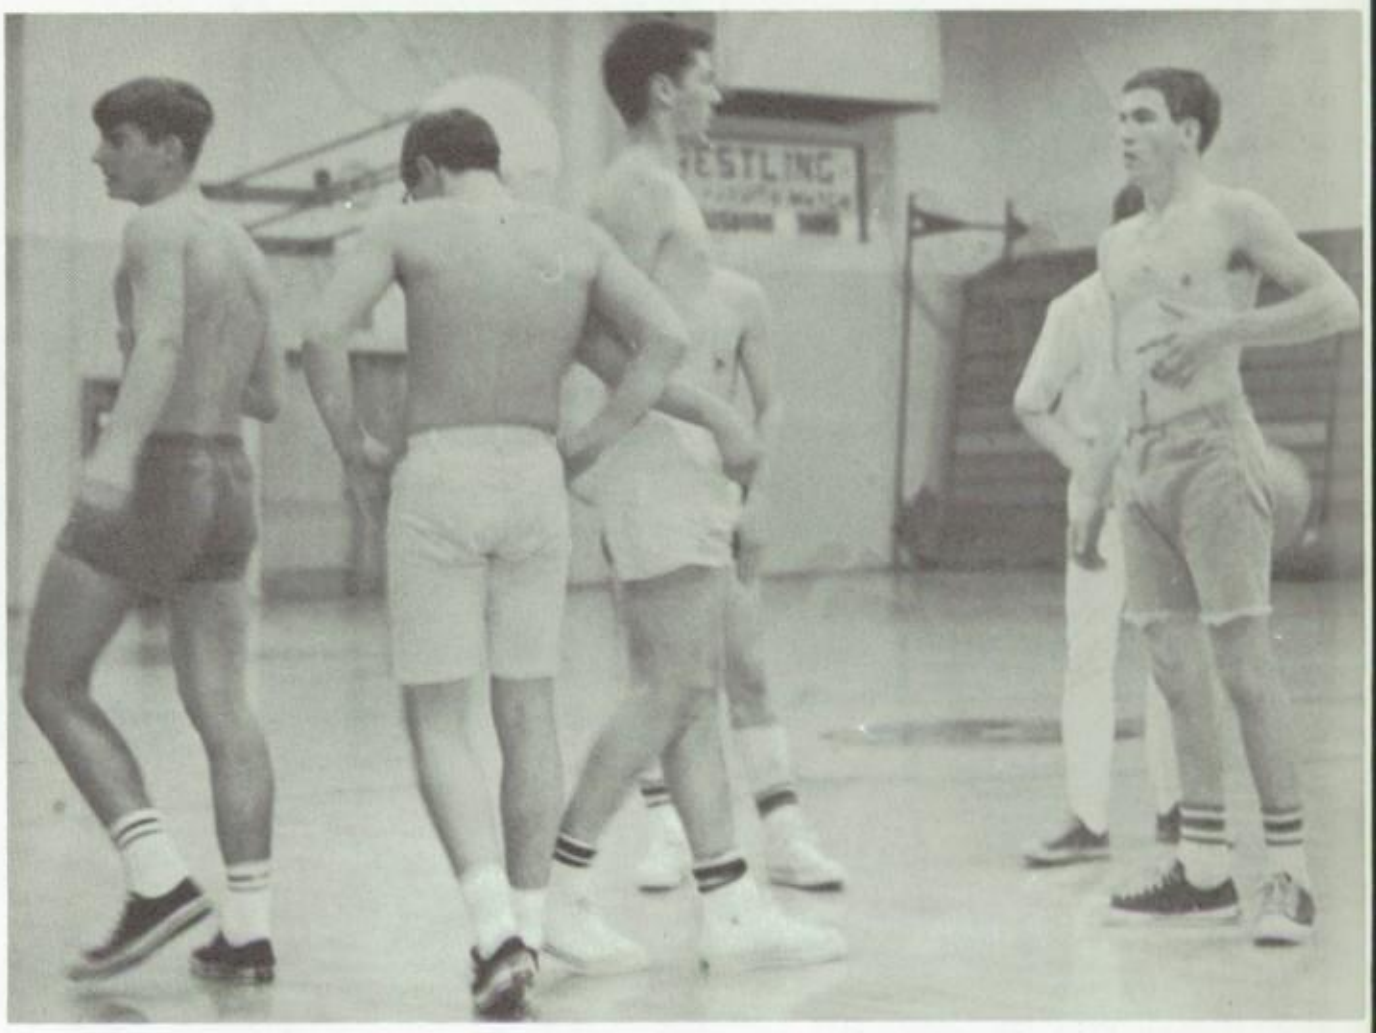
Ron Johnson's speech on over- population cheered both fathers and daughters.

A good time was had by all of the capacity crowd at the 11th Annual Father-Daughter Banquet.

Faculty Edges Seniors in Canned Food Benefit

In an effort to raise funds for the Canned Food Drive, the seniors and the faculty played an action-packed basketball game.

"Hotshot" Owens, "Clodhopper" Clark Peters, and "Tiger" McDowell were among the terrors who led the faculty to a 54-53 upset.

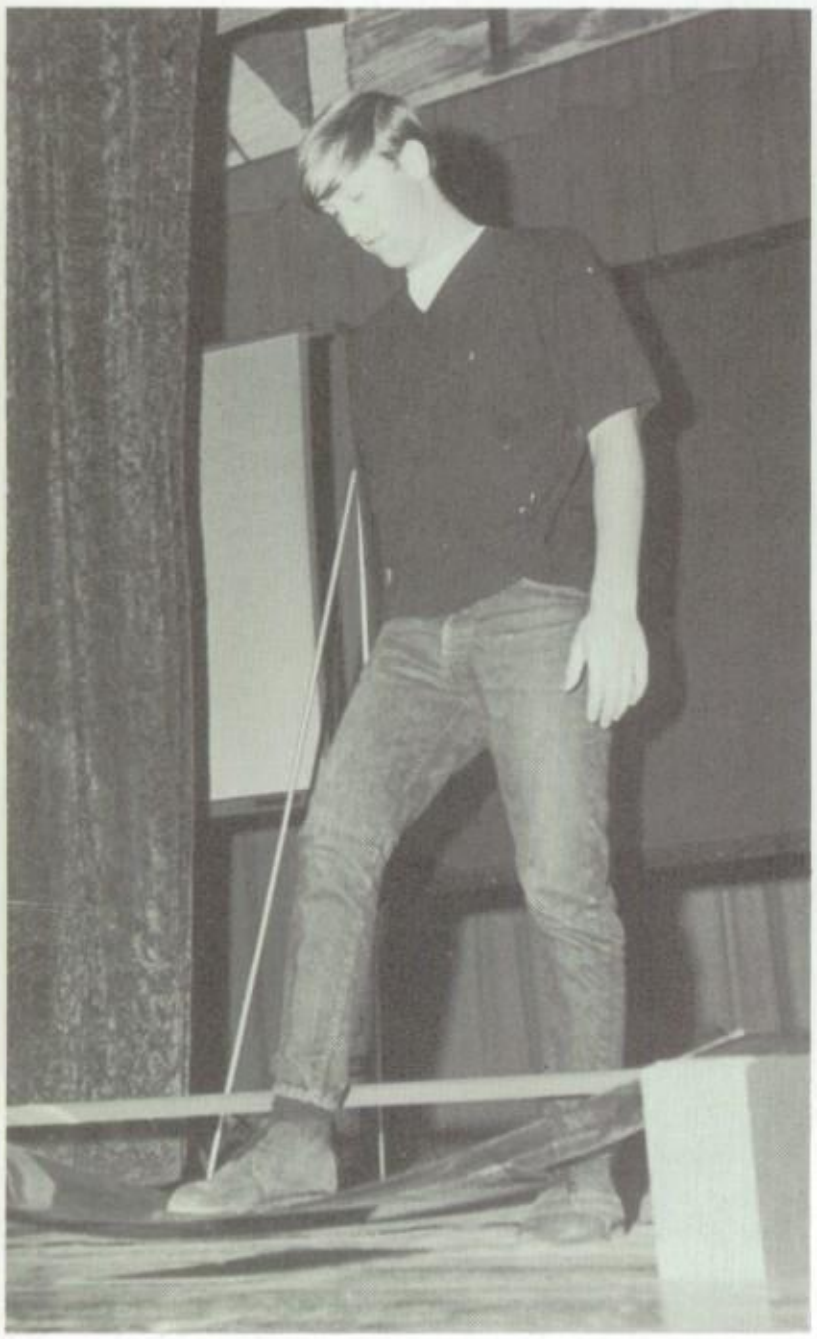


Seniors take a break from the action after a session of hard play.

Pat Harding takes careful aim for his free-throw.

"Who will get the ball?" seems to be the problem at hand.

Boys League In Action



Scott Countryman tested the flexibility of a new glass product during a Boys' League assembly sponsored by the Fisher Body and Craftsman Guild.

One of the most interesting Boys' League assemblies this year was the karate demonstration program. Speed, balance, and leverage are the primary fundamentals which must be learned.

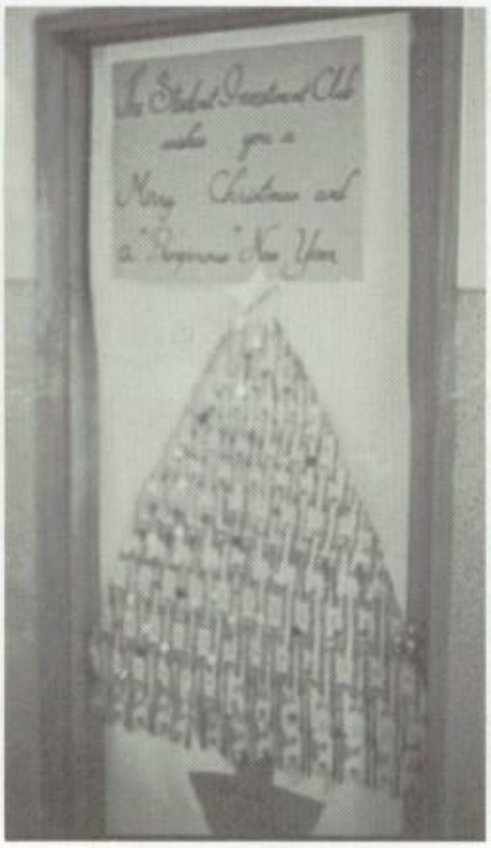
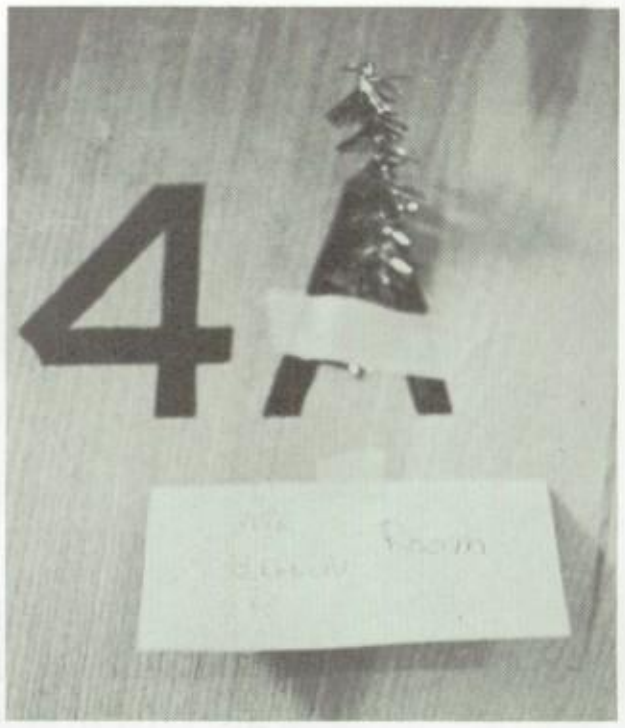
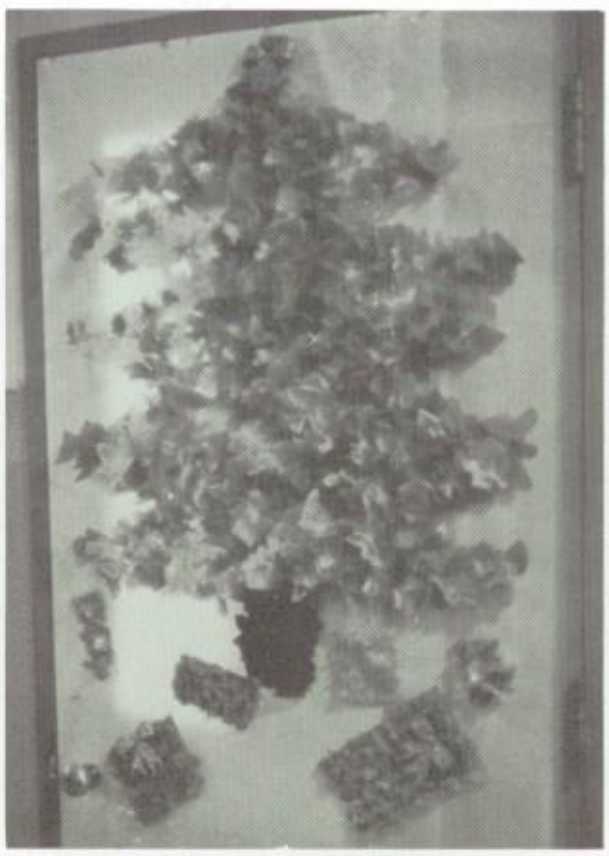
CHS Christmas Spirit

What is Christmas without a proud, majestic, colorful tree?





Christmas spirit readily appears in the unique and clever door designs which brighten the halls. Both students and teachers participate. It is apparent that the spirit of Christmas lives in many ways.



Varied Assemblies Spark CHS Life

Assemblies are an intricate part of any school, and Clackamas is no exception. The assembly committee succeeded in bringing many new speakers and varied activities to the student body. Topics ranging from snow survival to fire prevention to wild pep assemblies were viewed this year.

Mr. Geister demonstrated his hair-cutting ability during one of the pep assemblies. Did he select the wrong profession?

Junior girls crowd around defenseless "eagle."

Bill Angelos introduces the "new" coaching staff to onlooking students.

One of the most spectacular assemblies this year was the program sponsored by the Milwaukie Fire Dept. in conjunction with Fire Prevention Week.

An interplanetary visitor? No, just a fireman.

CHS Entertains Foreign Students

Foreign students aptly display their feelings about the United States during the assembly.

To liven up the assembly, a quartet of students from Central and South America sang several native songs. One problem developed-- they forgot the words.

After the assembly, students were able to talk with the exchange students. This lead to further understanding of other lands and peoples.

Dances

The Reasons Why was one of the many groups which appeared before Clackamas students this year.

Momentary joy and escape thrive on the cymbol's crash, the blaring guitar, the emphatic vocalist. Offering a break from daily routine, dances at Clackamas provide an opportunity for individual expression, social interaction, and relaxful moments.

After game dances, formal dances, even a computer dance indicate the variety enjoyed by Clackamas students. Moods and fashions vary with the occassion. There is something for everyone.

Mr. Newton relaxes for a few moments during the Hello Dance.

Spring Around the World

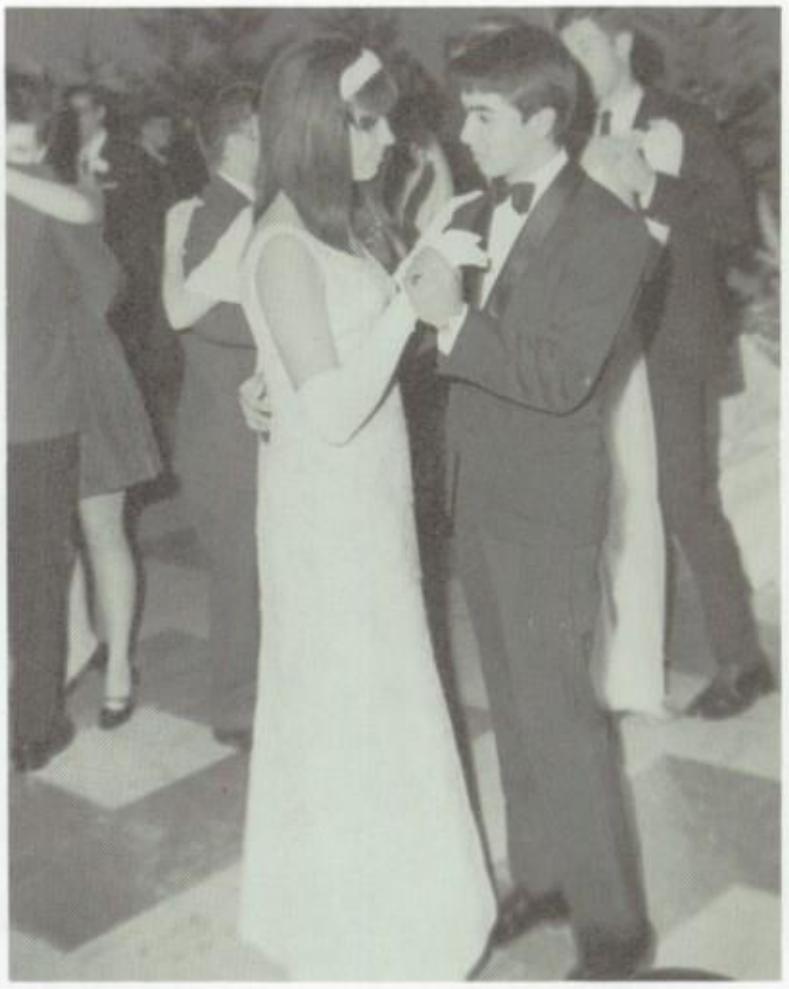
This year's theme for the annual boy-ask-girl Cotton and Cord Dance was Spring Around the World. Walls were decorated with bright flowers and travel posters.

Instead of choosing the King and Queen of Cotton on a basis of matching outfits, a dance contest was held. Sophomores Chris Sexton and Dan Isbell were crowned. The occasion was sponsored by the AFS and International Relations League. Proceeds went to the AFS fund.

The Shades, from Portland State College, provided the music plus the added feature of a go-go dancer for the Cotton and Cord affair.

Silver Thaw Theme Of Christmas Formal

Margie MacFarlane, 1966 Queen, and Queen Kristi Seivers helped add to the beauty of this occassion.



Mexican exchange students Ayde and Olivo step lightly to the music of Clackamas' stage band.

Donning formals and an air of sophistication, girls suddenly become women -- poised, self-confident.

Rob Kruger, senior class president, shows the form he used in losing the can-stacking contest at the Can Food Drive assembly.

Can Contest Climaxed With Assembly

Contributing the most canned goods this year was the freshman class, narrowly edging the seniors. Perhaps a new tradition is about to be established.

Olivo Zanela and Ayde Manzano do a traditional Mexican dance for the Clackamas student body.

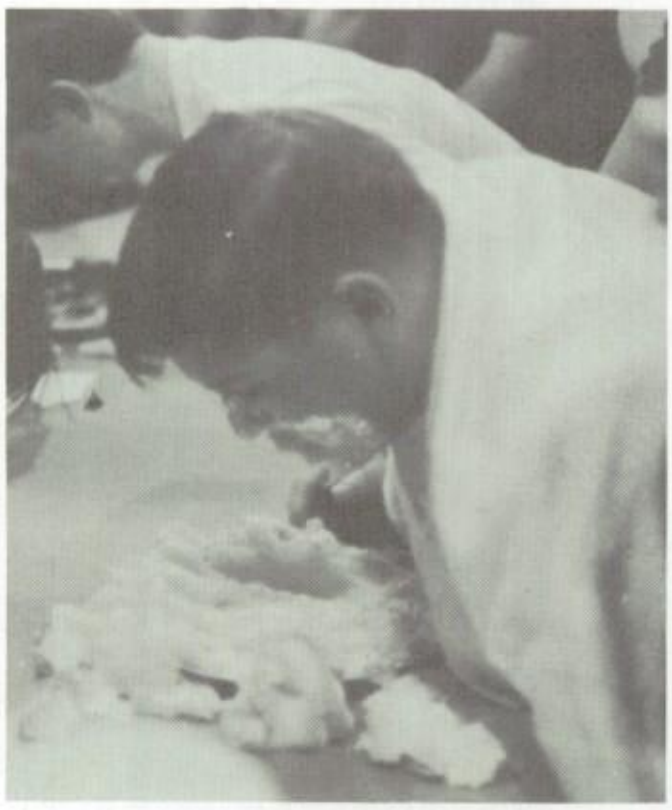
Juniors Conquer Higgy's Heroines

The Powder-Puff basketball game is an annual event sponsored by the Cavalettes. This year the proceeds have been saved until enough funds can be raised to buy a second scoreboard for the gymnasium.

Coaches for the event were Mr. Owens, who guided the juniors to victory, and Mr. Higgenbotham, who coached the sophomores and seniors. Following the game was the annual Alumni-Faculty basketball contest sponsored by the Scarlet C. Topping the evening was a dance in the cafeteria.

Juniors Sandy Ledgerwood and Pam Moen displayed their basketball prowess during a practice for the "big" game. Evidently the practice paid off.

Homecoming Week 1968



The condition of the pie that Bob Greig is eating might be considered a work of art by some groups.

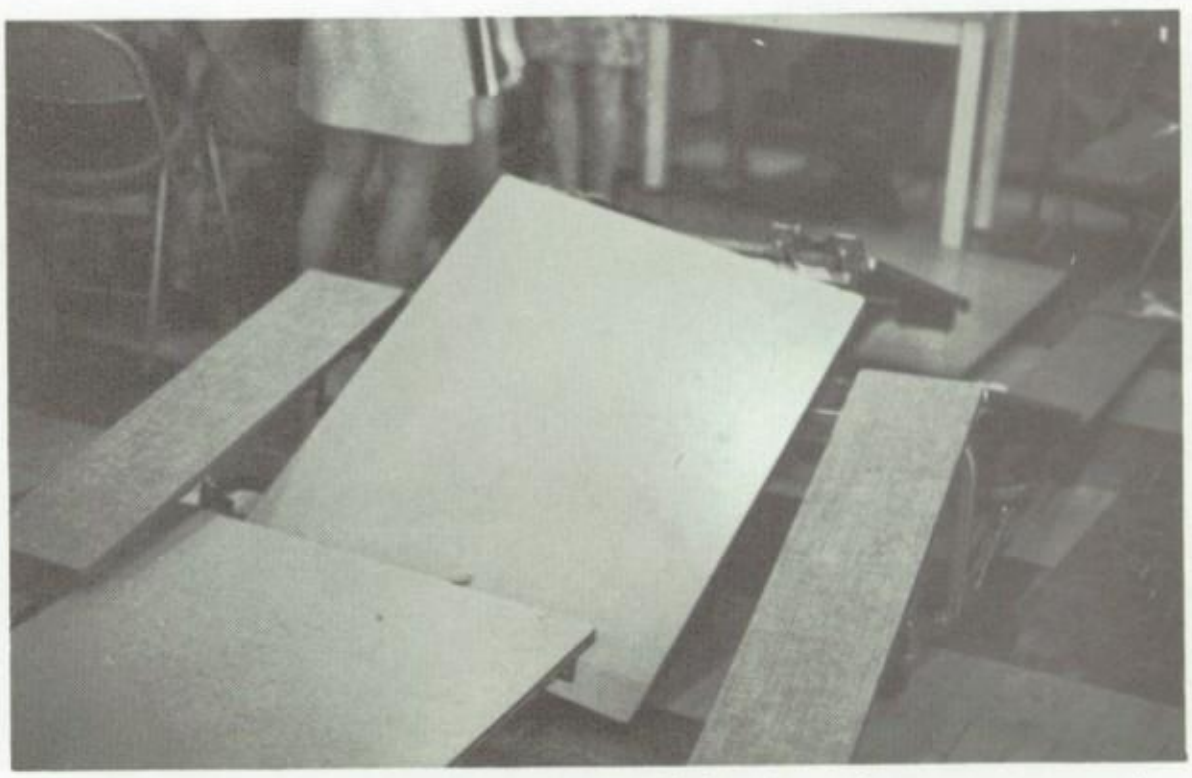
Juniors Chris Costanzo and Joyce Kaptyn look over the garters, a new item used in class sales.

In an attempt to create more spirit within the student body at Clackamas, a basic change in procedure was enacted. The homecoming court was announced a week in advance -- the purpose being to lengthen the extent of its reign.

Activities during Spirit Week included pie eating, chug-a-lugging, class sales, hat day and poster day. Juniors won the class competition, showing all others who had the most spirit.

A Clackamas hunter inspects his prey--a Beaverton beaver. The skit, performed by members of the freshman class, ended somewhat differently than the game. The Cavs lost the basketball contest.

Seniors Scott Countryman and Cheryl Warner provide the howling audience with a behind-the-scene look at how not to act while viewing a basketball game at Clackamas High.



Eager students trying to catch a glimpse of the pie eating contest proved to be more than this table could support. Cost of the damage was paid for out of student body funds. Fortunately, no one was injured.

Mardi Gras Clackamas Style

How's a parachute jump for an opening? Such was the case with this year's Carnival. Mr. Lowe, algebra teacher, volunteered his services for the affair.

Heading the Carinival this year was Don Waddell. Profits from the event were divided among the participating groups and Project 11, a beautification program. The event failed to draw as many adults as in the past; consequently, it did not make the profits acquired in previous carnivals.

Athletic Programs Continue as ...

Some Remain ...

This past year marks the second year Mr. Owens has been athletic director at Clackamas. His primary duties in that position include scheduling athletic events, arranging for transportation, purchasing athletic equipment, managing the athletic budget, and coordinating all athletic programs in the school.

Besides directing all athletic functions at CHS, Mr. Owens also teaches health seminar. He is an avid golfer, and he also enjoys playing tennis.

Mr. Gene Owens, athletic director, checks over next fall's schedule.

Some Enter...

Mr. Cook, new to the Clackamas coaching staff this year, is not new to coaching. Prior to his position as varsity track and cross-country coach at CHS, Mr. Cook served as football, basketball and track coach in Sidney, Nebraska. He also was head football coach, wrestling and track coach at Deer Park, Washington. He coached for three years at Tillamook, Oregon.

Mr. Wesley Cook was a new addition to the CHS coaching staff this year.

Mr. Herb Hawkins, head football coach, resigned his position this year after two years at CHS.

...Some Leave

Leaving his position as head football coach at Clackamas for the last two years is Mr. Herb Hawkins. Coach Hawkins came to Clackamas from Washington High School in Portland.

Besides coaching varsity football, Mr. Hawkins coached freshman wrestling, taught vocations class, and served as counsellor.

The Clackamas Cavaliers opened the season with only four senior lettermen--in what was to become a building year. Senior co-captains Roger Hohimer and Bill Angelos returned to lead the defense, along with Dan Lunde as safety man. Jerry Kreiter was the only returning letterman as a backfield starter.

Despite the poor win-loss seasonal record, the squad produced some exceptionally talented individuals. Roger Hohimer was selected to the all-Metro defense team as a linebacker. Senior Bill Angelos and junior Erik Gustafsson were voted to the second team all-Metro squad for their fine performances. Roger Robbins, junior tackle, was given honorable mention as a defensive tackler.

Hopes for a successful season next year are supported by the anticipated return of such players as juniors Greg Criss, Skip Kimes, Erik Gustafsson, and Randy Pfenning. A group of tough sophomores is being counted upon to provide depth in the squad's lineup.

Coach Hawkins' decision to leave Clackamas is regretted; however, former Sweet Home's coach Mr. Robbin Beck is inheriting a potentially powerful team.

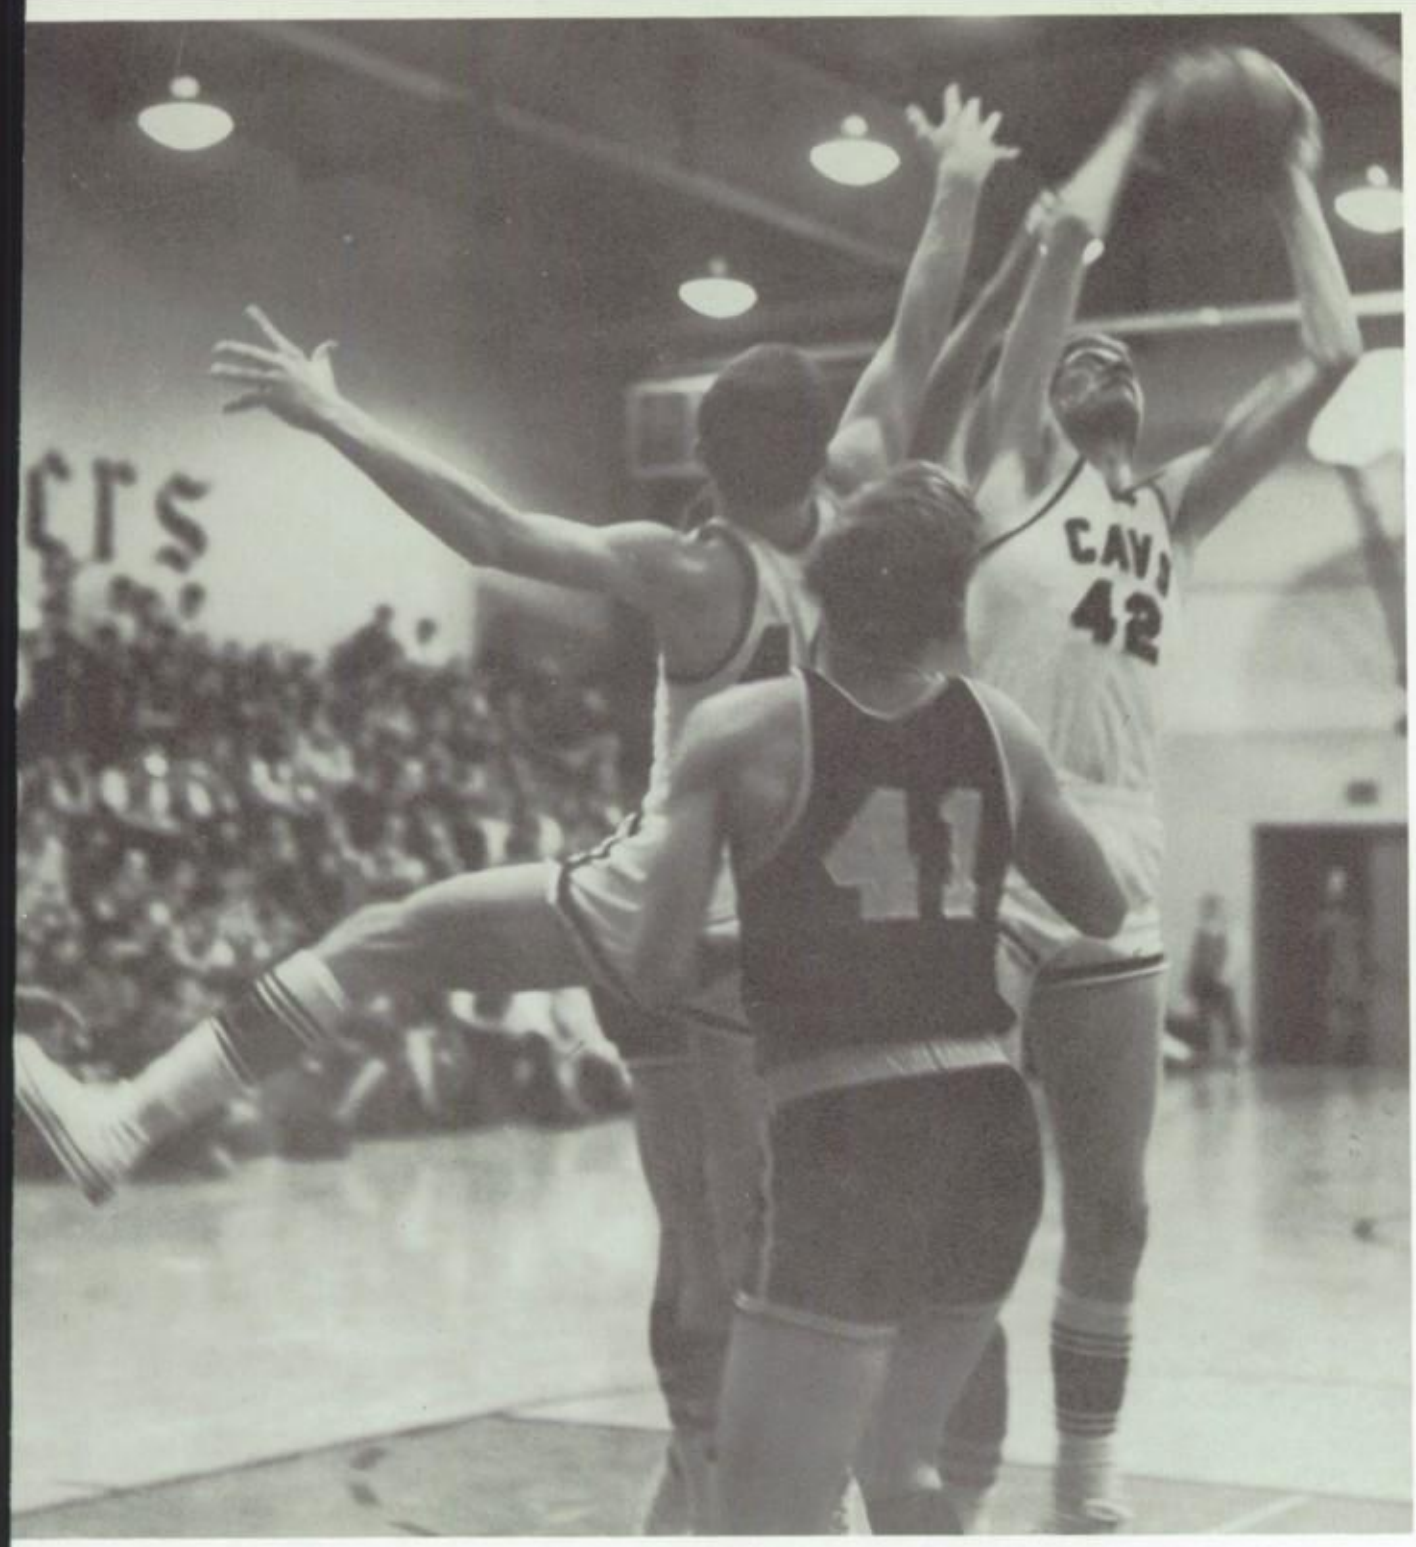
Steve Phelps puts up a shot over the stretched hands of Beaverton opponents. Steve showed great improvement over the season and is a good prospect for next year's squad.

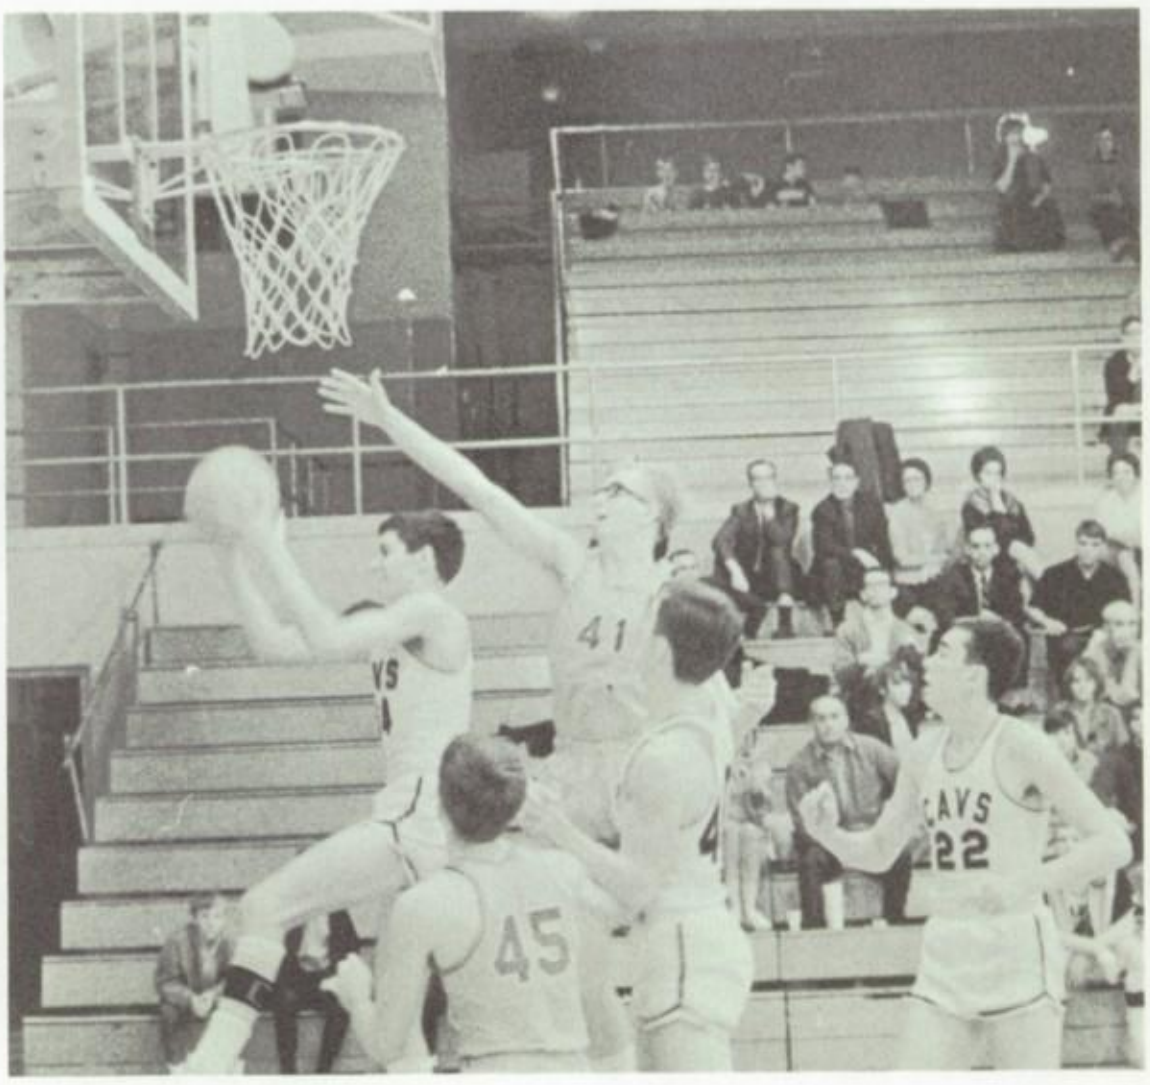


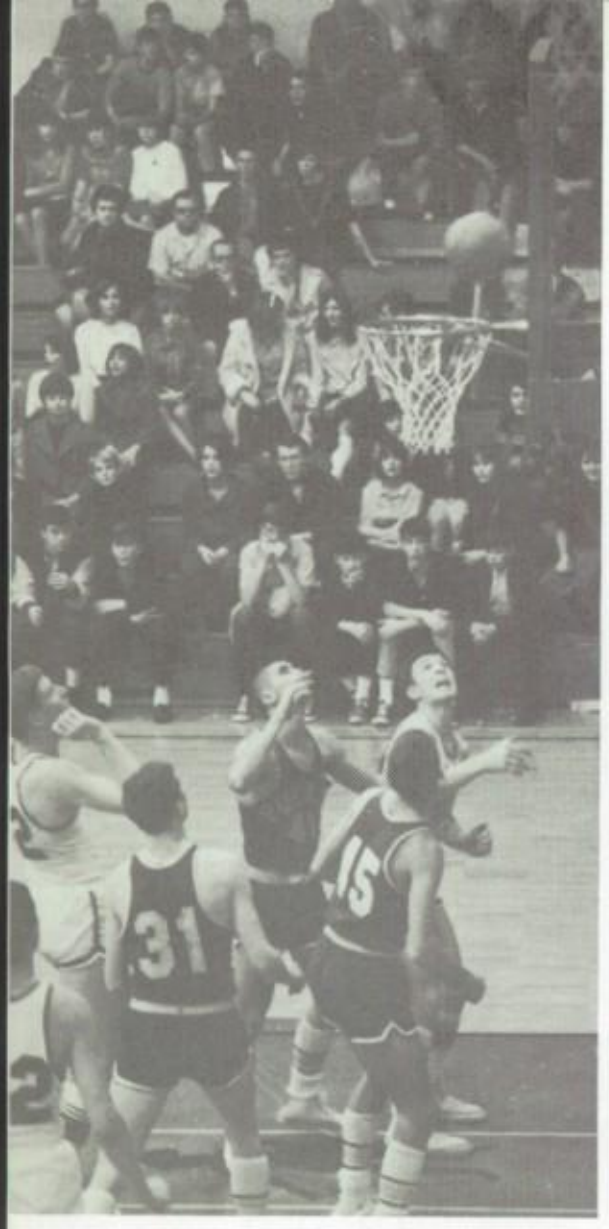
Number 42 will be remembered for some time whenever basketball seasons roll around. It's the number worn by 6' 7" Gene Stangel.

He will be remembered for his 404 points this season to lead the Metro League.

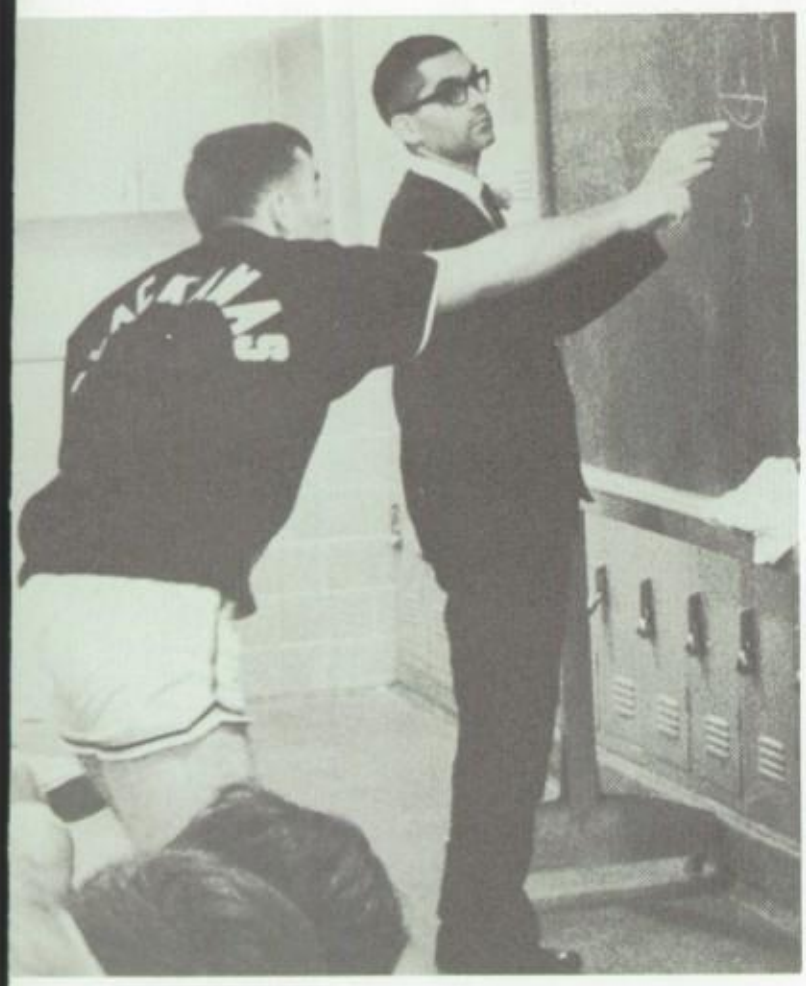
He will also be recalled for his ability to grab 252 rebounds from the backboard despite being plagued with poor vision.

But perhaps even more, he will be recognized for his dedication toward self-improvement, his good sportsmanship, his teamwork, and his love for the game.

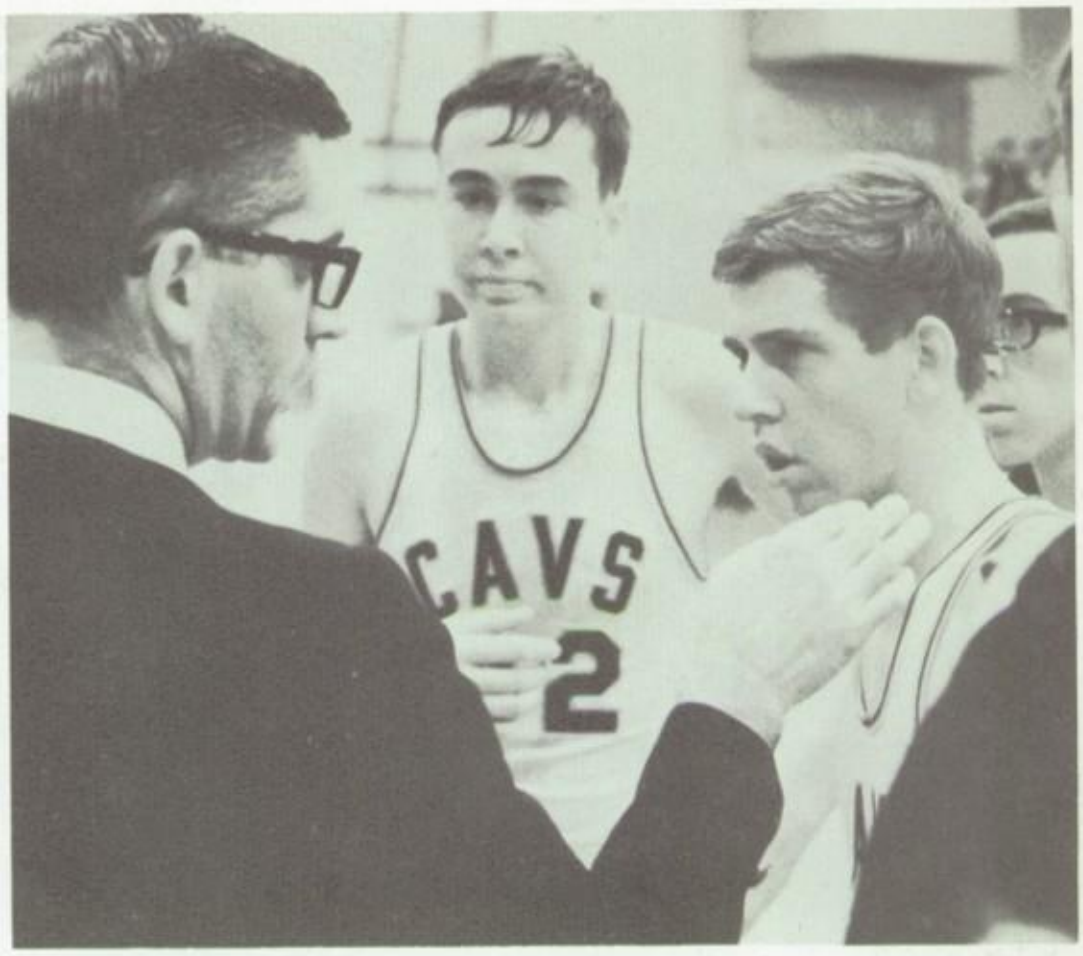




Coach Crimins



Captain Roger Hohimer indicates a weakness in defense during a half-time rest.



Darell Stone, Steve Phelps, and Dave Legg listen attentively to game strategy set up by coach Crimins. During the Winter Sports Banquet Mr. Crimins announced his decision to end his basketball coaching career.

Resigns Post After Six Years

From the viewpoint of a coach, attitude, discipline, and morale are extremely important ingredients in the composition of a basketball team. The 1967-68 Cavalier squad was rich in these components. The thirteen boys who started and finished the season could be proud of the character they revealed through the long and demanding winter of the basketball season.

Probably the season's highlight occurred at Astoria when the Cavaliers demonstrated to the hosts what dedicated defense and ball control can do. Clackamas held the Fishermen to forty-two points in the 53-42 exhibition of Clackamas poise and team play.

Gene Stangel finished the season with most of the individual honors and awards by leading the Metro League in scoring, by being chosen on the All-League team and the All-State fourth team, by leading Clackamas scoring with 404 points, and by winning the Most Valuable Player honor from his teammates. Dan Lunde and Roger Hohimer were noted for their scholarship, citizenship, and team leadership. It was a pleasure to coach these boys this year.

Wrestling Standouts

Take an athlete that is quick, has a great sense of balance, is physically superior in strength, who is willing to dedicate himself to learn the fundamentals he needs, and who has an intense desire to win. Work him hard so that he will develop the necessary stamina to go full speed for an entire match. Teach him; nurture him. Beat him down, and help lift him up. Help him develop poise, self-confidence, mental toughness, self-discipline. Inspire him, work with him, and before he graduates from high school he may be lucky enough to become a state champion.

To be a state champion is the hightest goal of every wrestler, so understandably every wrestler can't be a state champion. But every athlete is a winner if he believes in the principles and ideals of athletics and tries to live by these in achieving his goals of becoming a champion.

We had no champions this year--we had many winners.

Coach Helbig

Making his league debut, Rick Upham allowed only 3 hits and 1 run against Central Catholic. That was enough of an edge to beat the Rams 2-1.

CaptainRoger Hohimer (left) and first baseman Dan Knutson were the team's stalwarts.

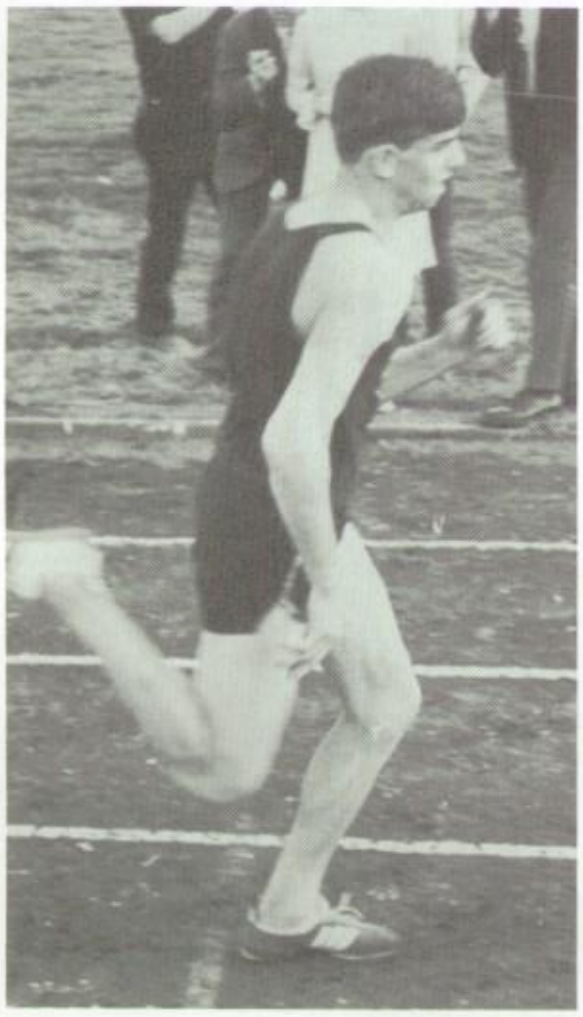
Track coaches this year included Mr. Mc Dowell and Mr. Haak (both kneeling), and Mr. Anderson and head coach Mr. Cook.

Dave Niklas sets to heave the shot during the Sunset tournament.

Track--the sport of specialization--offers the individual an unending challenge. For some the opponent is distance, for some it is time. Which ever it is, the competitor must push himself to the limit if he is determined to be the best.

Top physical conditioning and proper mental attitude must mesh to enable the competitor the all-important edge it takes to be the one who breaks the string, jumps the highest, throws the farthest.



Roger Robbins roars by the finish.

Sophomore Mike Wellock was the season's best long jumper. His presence added depth to the squad.

This year's track team had several fine individual performers, but it lacked depth. Only five seniors were available for leadership. Generally speaking, track events were weaker than field events. Termed a building year, the season has provided a fine crop of lower classmen who will be Mr. Cook's hopefuls during next season's schedule.

Coach Crimins observes his team during an afternoon practice.

Shot placement and steady playing helped make this year's boys' tennis team one of the best in the league. Highlighting the season was a tremendous upset victory over Beaverton, a team unbeaten in several seasons. Standouts during the season were sophomores Dan Zorn and Jim Lunde. Coach Crimins' hopes for a successful season were answered.

Varsity Golf

This year's team was once again sparked by the brilliant playing of junior Matt Chin and senior John Mc Ginnis. Competing in a difficult league, the golfers had a strong start but lost momentum only to come back as the season ended.

Pat Harding and Randy Snyder were dubbed by Coach Snider as most improved, while John Mc Ginnis and Bob Case, both third year players, helped stabilize the team this season.

Mrs. Kimberly

Girls Tennis

During a rainy season the girls' tennis team stood out as a ray of sunshine. The girls played an average of two teams a week with standouts Jenny Anderson in singles plus Pam Moen and Kathy Ledgerwood in doubles. This year's team finished in the first division of the district with great expectations for a team consisting of only junior and sophomores. Needless to say, Coach Kimberley was pleased.

Intramurals

An active part of CHS sports life is our intramural program. Activities include bowling, swimming, volleyball, and basketball.

Headed by Chief Snider, Miss Peterson, and Miss Bruce, students at Clackamas are able to enjoy competitive play and recreational entertainment in this program.

Members of this year's boys' championship bowling team were ed Fye, Craig Buckwalter, Kirk Pressey, and Steve Liesey. The girls' bowling team consisted of Chris Sexton, Cecile Hansen, and Debbie Fackrell.

In intramural basketball, Steve Dix's Destroyers topped the competition, followed by Scott Countryman's Roadrunners and McDowell's Manglers tied for second place. Ron Breyne's Harriers ended last.

Future Farmers of America

Future Farmers consists of students interested in vocational agriculture. The purpose of the club is to develop leadership, cooperation, and citizenship in its members. Learning through participating, these students apply their knowledge of parliamentary procedure, public speaking, live-stock judging. Many of the Clackamas High members have won high honors at county and state fairs.

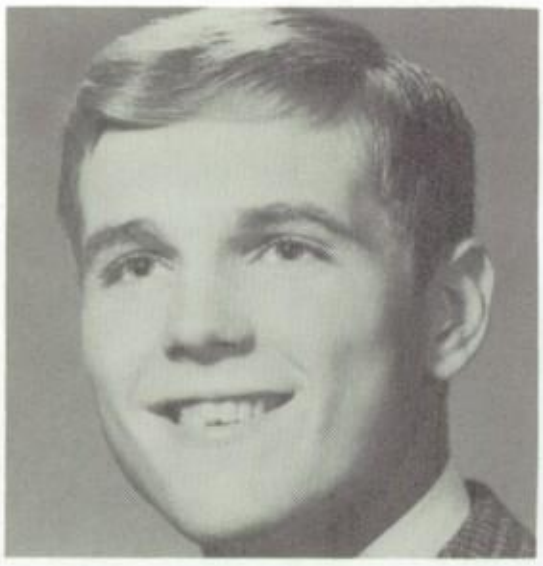
Clackamas High School's chapter of National Honor Society has a membership of forty juniors and seniors with grade point averages of 3. 2 or higher. NHS is responsible for the honor study program, the tutoring program, the honor roll, the honor board, and the library college corner.

This year NHS sponsored the Winter Sports Homecoming Dance. In May the organization hosted NHS groups from schools in four surrounding leagues for the District NHS Convention.



Scarlet C

Every letterman at Clackamas is eligible for membership in Scarlet C, an organization dedicated to many little-known and unrecognized services. These services are meant to strengthen the pride, the spirit, and the loyalty in our school and in ourselves.

Cavalettes

Supporting athletic events is the primary purpose of Cavalettes. Besides attending games and providing vocal support, members of this organization make posters to build spirit and to advertise up-coming games. Battle ribbon sales help pay for flowers and cakes presented to the coaches and players during the season.

The primary money-making project during the year is the Powder-puff basketball game. Although over $300 was raised this year, it wasn't enough to finance a new basketball scoreboard. Football homecoming and pep assemblies are also tasks undertaken by this group of dedicated and hard working girls.
